One might imagine a child sitting by the window, trying to melt with his breath a circle in the ice through which to peek outside. It followed the same storyline as The Company by Littel but it veered off into a supernatural twist somewhat like an alternate history. For example, DSGE models are void of any institutional context - no firms, no banks, no stock market because there is no math to derive them endogenously in the model and, besides, there is no rationale for them inside the model.
