She devotes a chapter to each of the cases she writes about and through this we get to see how the life of a vet is, the lessons she learns, the lives she saves and has to end, and then ultimately her own personal life with her pets. Bearing the Cross. The park is always bustling with activity. But at the same time, I do like the realism of stories like Captain Alatriseso I go for a balance between the romanticized aura of the pirate with the gritty realism of what their life is like. The ones that shut up, go where and do what they are told, the ones that do not want to see what is.
